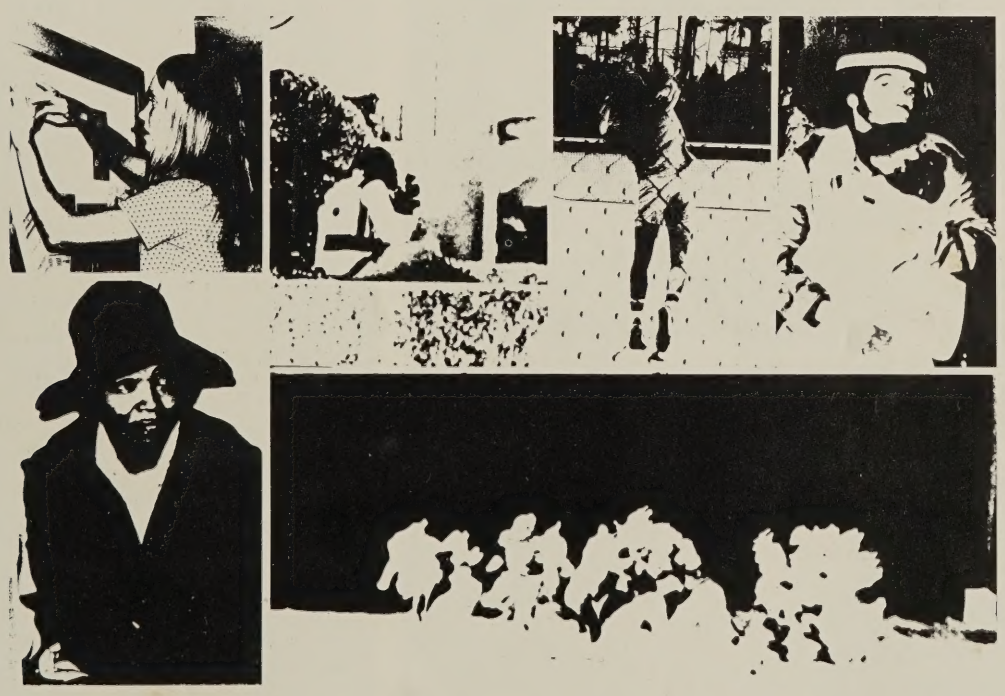
A high school, as all buildings,
Is useless, empty
Unitl it realizes a purpose.
People enter it, use it,
Pass their time,
Travel their appointed rounds;
Slowly, time passes —
Each minute, day, year
Piling one on the other
As grains of sand in an hourglass.
And so they go
Afraid
Into a world that is unsure of them.
These individuals
Once filled noisy corridors with laughter
Aspirations
Joys of expectant youth.
All are gone —
Some who sought knowledge and found its value,
Some who sought little and received the same.
But each left his mark —
A history of events
Unique and common
Indeliby — invisibly — engraved
Throughout the school.

School Life . . .



It is hard to get going.

Students return to their studies?

Jackie is ready, too.

Starting All Over Again

It's going to be rough.

Maybe we will make it.

Ray Nordstrom, of Nordstrom Chevrolet, presents keys to Evon.

At least somebody's happy.

. . . And Again

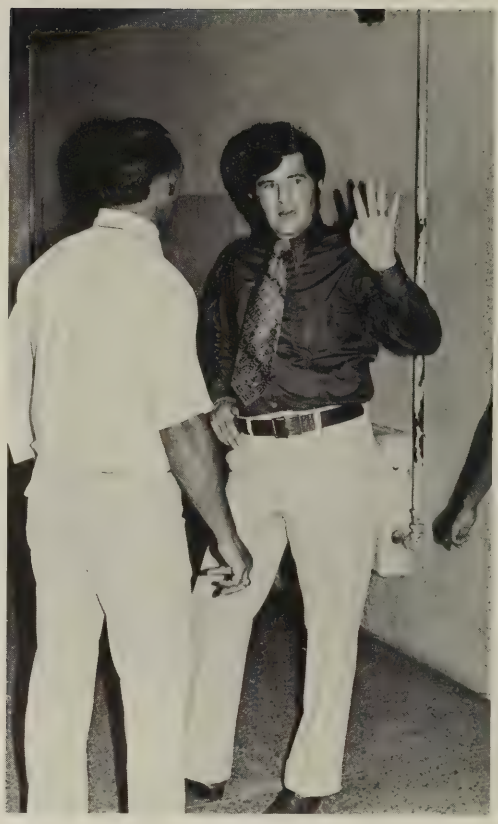
Pamela seems to enjoy study hall.



That's four.

The bread line.

Waiting in the wings.

Mr. James Massey presents keys to student.

Luncheon at the Ritz.

What's going on?

The logical solution to the problem?

Teachers plan tomorrow's strategy.

Too bad some teachers don't treat their students as well.

"Extra" Extracurricular Activities

What Would Flip Say?

The Devil, himself!

Does government with Mr. Mears do this to all seniors?

Where is Mr. Dent when Mrs. Dent is working in the concession stand?

Working Together

. . . Or alone
